4. SYLLABUSES

A. Foundation courses

BSTC6079. Early Buddhism: a doctrinal exposition

This course will be mainly based on the early Buddhist discourses (Pali Suttas) and is designed to provide an insight into the fundamental doctrines of what is generally known as Early Buddhism. It will begin with a description of the religious and philosophical milieu in which Buddhism arose in order to show how the polarization of intellectual thought into spiritualist and materialist ideologies gave rise to Buddhism. The following themes will be an integral part of this study: analysis of the empiric individuality into khandha, ayatana, and dhatu; the three marks of sentient existence; doctrine of non-self and the problem of Over-Self; doctrine of dependent origination and its centrality to other Buddhist doctrines; diagnosis of the human condition and definition of suffering as conditioned experience; theory and practice of moral life; psychology and its relevance to Buddhism as a religion; undetermined questions and why were they left undetermined; epistemological standpoint and the Buddhist psychology of ideologies; Buddhism and the God-idea and the nature of Buddhism as a non-theistic religion; Nibbana as the Buddhist ideal of final emancipation. The course will be concluded with an inquiry into how Buddhism's "middle position", both in theory and praxis, determined the nature of Buddhism as a religion.

BSTC6002. Mahayana Buddhism

This is a foundation course. Its main aim is to provide a foundational knowledge of Mahāyāna Buddhism for students with no or little background in Buddhist Studies. At the end of the course, students are expected to have acquired sufficient fundamental knowledge on the Mahāyāna tradition, to be able to better understand and appreciate the other more specialized courses on the various specific historical and doctrinal aspects within the vast tradition of the Mahāyāna, and indeed within the whole spectrum of the courses offered by CBS. In keeping with this aim, its contents are chiefly focused on the historical and doctrinal development in early Indian Buddhism — the source for all later development. The course begins with a survey on the contemporary theories of the origins of the Mahāyāna, and proceeds to examine the conception and formulation of the Bodhisattva Ideal in the earliest extant Mahāyāna texts, such as the Aṣṭa-sāhasrikā Prajñāpāramitā, Ugra-pariprocchā, etc. (including those preserved in Chinese translation). It further examines the question of the Primitive Prajñāpāramitā, the emptiness doctrine (śūnyatā) expounded by Nāgārjuna, the doctrines of the early Yogācāra and tathāgatagarbha thoughts. Other fundamental Mahāyāna doctrines examined include the trikāya, the six pāramitās, and the ten-stage progression (daśabhūmi). Some important scriptures are also selected for discussion, including the Diamond-cutter sutra, the Vimalakīrti-nirdeśa, and the Saddharmapuṇḍarīka.

B. Elective courses

BSTC6006. Counselling and pastoral practice

This course aims at providing students with basic knowledge and understanding of the application of Buddhist theory and practices to counselling and personal transformation. It covers from the Buddhist perspective the psychology of perception, emotions and thoughts; basic skills and concepts in counselling; recent development and research in psychotherapy, and insights into caring for the dying and their carers. The course comprises lectures, seminars, exercises and Buddhist practices. Students should be prepared to participate in the practices and exercises in class in order to acquire an experiential as well as intellectual understanding of the subject.

BSTC6011. Buddhist mediation

By integrating the techniques of Solution-focused brief therapy and the mediation process with Buddhist theories and practices, the course will teach a model of conflict resolution which reflects the Mahayana ideal of the practice of the Way of Bodhichitta of benefiting oneself and others in being able to resolve conflicts for oneself and for others and learn about the process of change and transformation through applications of the model. Students will acquire basic knowledge of theories and practices of Buddhism and mediation in an integral approach and apply the appropriate skills to be their own mediator and to mediate other people's dispute in their peer group or community. The mode of teaching will be by lecture, demonstration by videotapes or role-plays, role-play exercises in small groups and self-reflective learning.

BSTC6012. Japanese Buddhism: history and doctrines

This course introduces students to the history, teachings, practice, and institutional realities of Japanese Buddhism. The course will focus its special attention on the introduction of Buddhism to Japan, Prince Shotoku's contribution to its spread, the Taika Reforms, the Nara Buddhism, its formation and further development in the Heian and Kamakura periods, its transformation in the Edo period, its encounter with modernity in the Meiji period, and recent developments within Japanese Buddhism since the end of World War II. The founders of different schools of Buddhist thought such as Saicho, Kukai, Honen, Shinran, Eisai, Dogen, Nichiren and others together with their main teachings are also examined. The course will further examine the Buddhist impact upon the ways of thinking of the Japanese people with a view to understanding Japan and her culture.

BSTC6013. Tibetan Buddhism: history and doctrines

This survey course aims at the study of Tibetan Buddhism in historical and doctrinal contexts. During the course we will cover some of the following major topics: the historical transmission of Indian Buddhism to Tibet in two major periods; the various Buddhist traditions and schools of Tibet, their history, doctrinal differences, lineages and spheres of influence; Tibetan sacred art and the application of Tibetan Buddhism in festivals, institutions and daily life.

It enables them to understand the Buddhist Sutras compiled in Pali. Duration of this course is one academic year which is divided into two semesters. In the first semester, basic grammar is taught along with Pali exercises. The course contents include the following: Pali phonetics, parts of speech, different nouns and their declension, different verbs and their conjugation, participles and their function, absolutes, sandhi, syntax and classification of sentences. The second semester is mainly devoted to the understanding and translating of selected Pali Sutras and to build up sufficient vocabularies for the students.

BSTC6031. Special topics in Buddhist studies (3)

This course is offered from time to time. Students should consult the Centre of Buddhist Studies on the content of the course on offer.

BSTC6032. History of Indian Buddhism: a general survey

An objective understanding of the development of any Buddhist tradition presupposes a proper historical perspective. The course is designed to provide students with a general, but not superficial, survey of Indian Buddhism from a historical perspective highlighting all the important developments up to the emergence of Mahāyāna. The main themes for the course include: the origins of Buddhism and the Indian Background; process of the compilation of the Canon; the classification of the Buddha's teachings; the Councils; the popularization of Buddhism; the emergence and development of the major Buddhist sects; King Asoka and his contribution to the Buddhist cause; spread of Buddhism outside India; rise of Mahāyāna Buddhism and other related topics.

BSTC6034. Mindfulness, stress reduction and well-being

This course aims at providing students with basic knowledge and understanding of the mindfulness in Buddhism and the application of mindfulness training in stress reduction and fostering well-being. This is an experiential as well as a theoretical course which covers the latest research and theories on mindfulness training in the health sector. Students will take part in exercises based on the eight-week Mindfulness-Based Stress Reduction Programme and discuss readings prescribed for the course. They are expected to deepen their experience through home practice and apply them in their daily lives.

BSTC6039. Abhidharma doctrines and controversies

The period of the Abhidharma represents the historical stage when Buddhist "philosophy" so-called truly began. A foundational knowledge of the Abhidharma doctrines will enable the students to acquire an integrated perspective of the Buddhist development as a whole: On the one hand, equipped with this knowledge which serves as a commentarial guide, they will be in a better position to comprehend the Buddhist tradition's conceptions of the sūtra teachings in the preceding stage. On the other hand, they will be able to meaningfully relate the subsequent Mahāyāna development to the Abhidharma development, thereby gaining a deeper insight of the teachings of the former.

This course has as its scope the Abhidharma development in the northern tradition. It focuses primarily on the doctrines of the Sarvāstivāda-Vaibhāṣikas and the Dārṣṭāntika-Sautrāntikas. While detailing the Abhidharma controversies, the relevant doctrines of the Mahāsāṃghikas and Vātsīputrīya-Sāṃmitīyas, etc., will also be discussed. The early part of the course will outline the historical and doctrinal background necessary for understanding the controversial doctrines to be examined in details subsequently. The bulk of the course that follows will focus on selected controversial doctrines of importance, such as the tri-temporal existence of all dharma-s (sarvāstīva), simultaneous causality, the ontological status of the cittaviprayukta-saṃskāra-s, the avijñapti and the unconditioned dharma-s, etc. The discussion on these controversies will mainly be based on the Abhidharmakośa-bhāṣya, supplemented with commentarial material from the Abhidharma-mahā-vibhāṣā, the Nyāyānusārā* of Saṃghabhadra, the Abhidharmadīpa with Vibhāṣā-prabhāvṛtti, and the Sphuṭārthā Abhidharmakośa-vyākhyā of Yaśomitra. By studying these controversies, the students will gain a deeper insight into the doctrinal and spiritual concerns of the ancient masters in this period, and how these concerns fervently stimulated progressive articulation and development of Buddhist thoughts.

BSTC6042. Advanced Tibetan

This course aims at students with basic knowledge of literary Tibetan and grammar. It will cover advanced features of Tibetan grammar and syntax, complex sentences and specialized Buddhist vocabulary. Students will be introduced to reading and translating select passages from different genres of Tibetan literature.

BSTC6044. History of Chinese Buddhism

This course examines the major events and thoughts in the history of Chinese Buddhism with a particular emphasis on the establishment of Chinese Buddhist Schools. A major aim is to show how Buddhism has been gradually and successfully incorporated into and became one of the three pillars of Chinese thought and culture. The important Chinese Buddhist masters will also be examined against their historical background to show their contribution to the development of Chinese Buddhism.

BSTC6045. Readings in Buddhist Sanskrit texts (Elementary)

The design of this course is guided by the reasonable assumption that the most interesting and rewarding way to learn Classical Sanskrit as a beginner is to actually read some simple Sanskrit texts that interest him, under the guidance of a teacher. Classical Buddhist Sanskrit texts have their own styles, idiomatic expressions and technical terminologies with which the student must first be familiarized. As the course proceeds, the student is being gradually and systematically introduced to both Buddhist textual material on the one hand, and elementary grammar on the other.

For pedagogical reason, all vocabularies, examples and passages for the exercises in each lesson (except, understandably, the first one or two) are selected from the Prajñāpāramitā texts, particularly the Aṣṭasāharikā, to ensure linguistic and contextual homogeneity as much as possible. The selection is made on the basis of (i) simplicity in terms of grammatical structure and doctrinal meaning, and (ii) the existence of corresponding Chinese versions (particularly those translated by Xuan Zang and Kumarajiva). Occasionally, however, the need arises to select a few sentences from other Buddhist sources (such as the Abhidharmakośabhāṣya). Hybrid Sanskrit passages will be excluded.

As the student learns and attempts the graded passages, all the grammars involved will be analyzed and doctrines explained to him in a gradual build-up manner. In each exercise, one section also consists of passages from the Vajracchedikā Prajñāpāramitā, selected to match the student's level of grammatical comprehension reached in the particular lesson. This is to take advantage from the fact that most students here can understand basic Classical Chinese, and some can even memorize most of the passages from Kumarajiva's version of the Vajracchedikā-prajñāpāramitā-sūtra.

It can be an advantage if the student already has some familiarity with elementary Sanskrit grammar. However, neither familiarity with Buddhist scriptures and Classical Chinese nor knowledge of Sanskrit is an absolute prerequisite of this course.

BSTC6052. Study of important Buddhist meditation texts

Meditation is an integral part of the study and practice of Buddhism. This course will include the study of important Buddhist texts related to the practice of meditation from various traditions so that students will be able to see their differences and similarities. Passages will be selected from texts such as: the Satipatthana Sutta (念處經), Visuddhimagga (清淨道論), Liu men jiao shou xi ding lun (六門教授習定論), Da mo er ru si xing guan (達摩二入四行觀), and the Three statements of Garab Dorje (大完滿椎擊三要訣). Students will also be introduced to the actual practice of meditation. Students taking this course are expected to have a good command of classical Chinese.

BSTC6055. Buddhist psychology I

This course takes a psychological perspective to introduce Buddhism as a moral and psychologically healthy way of life. The early Buddhist way of life as practiced by the Buddha and his disciples is introduced through selected readings from English translations of the original Pali texts Majjhima Nikaya and Anguttara Nikaya. This source is chosen over other more theoretically oriented secondary sources on the belief that the early Buddhist way of life provided the experiential (and empirical) basis for Buddhist philosophy. The narrative format offers lively and concrete examples of problem solving in daily life that are easily understood by most readers and more importantly- less readily misunderstood. Theories and important concepts in Buddhism are introduced later in the course to bind together the rather loosely organized teachings of the Nikaya texts. Finally, the epistemological foundation of Buddhism is introduced through selected readings from the Yogacara tradition (in particular the Thirty Stanzas) and compared with recent developments in theoretical psychology (in particular social constructionism).

BSTC6056. Special topics in Buddhist studies (4)

This course is offered from time to time. Students should consult the Centre of Buddhist Studies on the content of the course on offer.

BSTC6057. Special topics in Buddhist studies (5)

This course is offered from time to time. Students should consult the Centre of Buddhist Studies on the content of the course on offer.

BSTC6058. Buddhism and contemporary society

This course examines various contemporary social issues from the Buddhist perspectives. The topics discussed include: the foundation for a peaceful society, war and peace, social ethics, material wealth, environment, family, gender, suicide and euthanasia, death, etc. Each topic is discussed by drawing material from the canonical Buddhist texts and analyzed in the light of Buddhist thought.

BSTC6059. Readings in Buddhist Sanskrit texts (Advanced)

This is a one-year course designed as a sequel to “Basic Sanskrit” (BSTC6021) and “Readings in Buddhist Sanskrit texts (Elementary) (BSTC6045). Accordingly, the intending student must possess a pass in at least one of these two courses. It is mainly devoted to selected readings in Indian Buddhist texts particularly the Buddhacarita, Bodhicaryāvatāra, Abhidharmakośabhāṣya, Yogācārabhūmi-śāstra, Mūla-madhyamakārikā, Vijñaptimātratā-siddhi (Viṃśikā and Triṃśikā).

BSTC6066. Doctrines of the early Indian Yogācāra

This course introduces the students to the doctrinal development of Indian Yogācāra up to the period of Dharmapāla. The survey begins with a brief survey of the doctrinal contribution from the Sarvāstivādins in the milieu of the Abhidharma-mahāvibhāṣā, particularly the early yogācāras. It will then proceed to examine the doctrines in the Basic Section (本地分; maulī bhūmiḥ*) of the Yogācāra-bhūmi, which on the whole constitutes the earliest stratum of the textual sources of the Yogācāra as a Mahayāna school. Particular emphases are laid here on its doctrines of the two intrinsic natures, prajñaptivāda-svabhāva and nirabhilāpya-svabhāva, and its epistemological doctrines — both representing a realistic standpoint characteristic of this Section. This will be followed by a study of the relatively more developed doctrines in the texts of the Maitreya-Asaṅga complex and of Vasubandhu, et al., including: the system of eight consciousnesses (particularly the ālaya-vijñāna doctrine), the Threefold Intrinsic Nature, the Threefold Absence of Intrinsic Natures, vijñaptimātratā and āśraya-parāvṛtti. The course will end with a discussion on the developed doctrines in Xuanzang’s Vijñaptimātra-siddhi* (成唯識論).

BSTC6070. Research methodology in Buddhist Studies

Getting acquainted with certain research methods and techniques is fundamental to any meaningful academic preoccupation with Buddhism. Due to the immense complexity of Buddhism as an ancient and wide-spread historical phenomenon and as a living world religion, a huge array of methodical approaches and research tools can prove to be fruitful in examining certain varieties and aspects of Buddhism. This course, however, is limited to providing an introduction to some of the most fundamental methodological devices employed in investigating the history of pre-modern Buddhist doctrines and philosophy. Moreover, major emphasis will be laid on the problems involved in studying Indian Buddhist thought.

During the first three weeks of the semester, major recent methodological controversies will be discussed. Afterwards, a detailed and practical introduction to research skills still regarded by many scholars as the most fundamental ones, namely, textual criticism and editorial technique, will be given. Indian Buddhist texts are preserved in many different languages, including the Buddhist variety of Classical Chinese. Examples and exercises will be drawn predominantly from those languages and texts to which the participants are already accustomed.

BSTC6075. The Pali commentarial literature

The course is designed to critically examine and analyze different aspects of the Pali commentaries. The course consists broadly of the following two areas: I. a textual analysis of the commentaries; II. examination of contents of the commentaries. Under the first category the following areas of study will be examined: the sources of the present Pali Aṭṭhakathā known collectively as the Sīhaḷa-aṭṭhakathā; the date of the composition of Sīhaḷa-aṭṭhakathā and the sequence of their translation into Pali after the fifth century A.C.; the commentators, Buddhaghosa, Dhammapāla, etc. - their lives and works; etc. The second category will include: individual concepts as reflected in the commentaries; different interpretations between Buddhaghosa and Dhammapāla; doctrinal and other differences between the Mahāvihāra and Abhayagiri fraternities; value of the Pali commentaries as source-material for the Study of Buddhism, etc.

BSTC6076. The Buddha-concept and Bodhisatta Ideal in Theravada Buddhism

This course is designed to examine from a historical perspective the Buddha-concept and Bodhisatta Ideal from the earliest Canonical texts to the exegetical literature of Theravada Buddhism. For this, the main topics for examination will include: the Buddha's biography; beginnings of his apotheosis; 'great man' (mahāpurisa); 'great compassion' (mahākaruṇā); 'four confidences' (catu-vesārajja); 'omniscient knowledge' (sabbāññuta-ñāṇa); 'spiritual power' (ñāṇa-bala) and 'physical power' (kāya-bala); '80 minor bodily marks' (asīti-anuvyañjana); and '18 qualities of the Buddha' (aṭṭhārasabuddhadhamma). The course will also examine the Bodhisatta Ideal, an integral part of the Buddha-concept in Buddhism, and the topics for discussion will include the 'perfections' (pāramitā), 'aspirations' (abhinhāra), '18 impossible states of birth for a bodhisatta' (atthārasa-abhabbaṭṭhāna), and others.

BSTC6080. Chinese Buddhist art along the Silk Road

This course introduces students to the splendors of Buddhist art and architecture from the perspective of its historical and cultural heritage. It offers a comprehensive survey of its transmission from India, Central Asia through the Silk Road to China, South, Southeast and East Asia. The major Buddhist caves in China will be examined, and special attention will also be paid to the interaction between Buddhist doctrine and art, literary expressions and images. As a major emphasis, the course will be on exploring the main traditions of Chinese Buddhist art and its interaction with the Western world.

BSTC6082. Studies in Pali Suttas

The Pali Canon contains many discourses relating to Early Buddhism. Reading the canonical texts is therefore the direct method of learning the teachings of the Buddha. This course is meant for those interested in gathering more direct information from the Pali texts on early Buddhism. The knowledge of Pali is not a precondition for enrolment for this course as important linguistic terms are explained in the course of reading. Suttas (discourses) representing various aspects of Buddhist philosophy, Buddhist Saṅgha (community of monks and nuns), and early history of Buddhism are selected from the Pali Canon for reading and discussion. The following suttas, which are subject to change from time to time, are prescribed for this course: Cūlahatthipadopama and Cūlavedalla suttas of the Majjhimanikāya, Aputtaka-sutta and Kaccāyanagotta-sutta of the Saṃyuttanikāya, Vyagghapajja, Meghiya and Uposatha suttas of the Aṅguttaranikāya, Maṅgala, Parābhava and Vasala suttas of the Suttanipāta, Subhā Jīvakaṃbavanikā from the Therīgāthā and Bhikkhunīkhandhaka from the Saṃyuttanikāya.

BSTC6083. The concept of emptiness and Prajñāpāramitā literature

Emptiness is an important concept in Buddhist teaching. In the early canonical texts, the concept was often used in association with the teaching of the three marks of existent (impermanence, suffering and no-self) as a kind of practice for those on the path to arhathood. However, in the Mahayana texts, it is through the realization of the emptiness (sunyata) of phenomena that the Bodhisattvas develop the prajnaparamita or perfect wisdom.

This course will study and examine the concept of emptiness and follow its development from the early canonical texts like the Nikaya and Sutta Nipata to its blossoming in the prajnaparamita literatures like Astasahasrika, Heart Sutra and Diamond Sutra. The course will conclude with a study of the Chinese commentary of the Diamond Sutra by Mahasattva Fu of the Liang dynasty so that students would get a more complete picture of the development of the concept of emptiness and its relationship with prajnaparamita literatures.

BSTC7001. Readings in Buddhist Tibetan texts (Elementary)

This is an introductory course on learning how to read Tibetan Buddhist texts and does not require prior knowledge of literary Tibetan. It is run for one full academic year that is divided in two consecutive semesters. In the first semester students learn to read and write Tibetan, while acquiring a practical understanding of grammar and the ability to translate sentences and short passages mainly from Tibetan to English, but also from English to Tibetan. In the second semester students are trained to translate texts and selected passages from various genres of Tibetan Buddhist literature, while learning additional grammar and specialized Buddhist terms in their doctrinal contexts.

BSTC7002. Tantric meditation traditions in Tibet: a survey of Vajrayāna texts and practices

The emergence of Vajrayāna in seventh and eighth-century India, also known as Tantric Buddhism, marked a systematic movement of religious practice, interpretation and understanding of the Buddha's teachings. A prolific production of esoteric scriptures requiring initiation and exegesis by lay or monastic tantric masters infused Mahāyāna Buddhism with new training techniques and ways of conceptualizing the soteriological goal of Buddhism. Tantras spread with various Buddhist traditions across India, Nepal, Bhutan, Tibet, Central Asia, China, Japan, Korea and Mongolia. In this course we will discuss the historical transmission of Indian Buddhist tantras to Tibet at the times of the Tibetan empire and during the medieval times. We will examine some representative Vajrayāna teachings and practices as they were received and developed in Tibetan monastic schools and lay tantric settings: Geluk (lower and higher tantras), Kagyu (Six Dharmas of Naropa and Mahāmudra), Sakya (Lamdre and the Hevajra Tantra) and the meditative tradition of the Great Perfection, or Dzogchen, as it was systematized in the Nyingma and Bön.

Prerequisites: Prior completion of at least one of the following courses: BSTC6002, BSTC6013, BSTC6032, BSTC6079, or with consent of instructor.

BSTC7003. Dunhuang Buddhist art and culture

This course is a theme-based study of Buddhist art and cultural relics preserved in the Dunhuang Grottoes. It will examine the development of Buddhist art in Dunhuang from the historical, iconographical and doctrinal perspectives. The main themes discussed in the course include: the early Buddhist narrative art, the Maitreya cult, the illustration of Vimalakīrti-nirdeśa Sūtra and Lotus Sūtra, the representation of Pure Land, the Guanyin faith and Bodhisattva path, the development of Esoteric art, Dunhuang art in the Tubo period, Mañjuśrī and Mount Wutai, the sacred calligraphy and printing culture, and some other related topics. The cultural interaction with Central Asia, and the impact from central China Ch'ang-an on the development of Dunhuang art and culture will be examined. The course aims to introduce to the students the unique value of Dunhuang Buddhist art and culture as a time capsule of Silk Road history under the influence of Buddhism.

BSTC7004. Buddhist psychology II

Based on the perspective and materials of BSTC6055, this course aims to further the understanding of the Buddha's teaching as elucidated in the early suttas through a psychological investigation of a wider range of relevant studies in science and philosophy. The former include the works of Jean Piaget and Kenneth Gergen (representing respectively the constructivist and social constructionist approaches in psychology) and that of Konrad Lorenz (evolutionary epistemology). The latter include the work of John Dewey from the modern West, and "Cheng Wei Shi Lun" and "Zhuangzi" from the ancient East. These studies are intended to help us interpret the suttas in more familiar languages, and to see Dukkha in relation to modern conditions as well as arising from inherent human weaknesses. It will also be shown that better understanding of the suttas will revert to benefit science and philosophy (in particular psychology) fundamentally and in a variety of ways: by providing an overall organizational framework and epistemology to integrate their various "approaches"; by providing an empirical yardstick for evaluating ideas and practices (that of cessation of dukkha); by integrating theory and practice in psychology; in general by helping us see the problems of modern society (Dukkha and its Arising) in a new light; and hence how we should act (Cessation and the Path).

BSTC7005. Architecture and Buddhist spirituality: a historical perspective

Based on the teachings of the Nyingma School of Tibetan Buddhism, this course is an interdisciplinary study of Architecture and Buddhism using physical buildings to explain Buddhist philosophies. The Vimalakirti Sutra says, "All the different kinds of earthly desires are all the seeds of the Buddha". The course will begin with an introduction to the Nyingma School of Tibetan Buddhism and clarification of the relationship for the three schools of Madhyamaka, Yogacara and Tathagatagarbha (Buddha-nature). Subsequently, spirituality is explained and discussed in each of the three schools of Madhyamaka, Yogacara and Tathagatagarbha illustrated with examples from the study of architecture like architectural styles, theories of architecture, functionality, historical references and construction technology. The spirit of modernism, technology, symbolism, sustainability and humanity in architectural studies are revealed to be embraced in corresponding views of various Buddhist philosophies from the three schools of Madhyamaka, Yogacara and Tathagatagarbha with reference from Sutras and Shastras. The course will also cover Buddhist Architecture in Asia such as India, China (including Tibet) and Japan etc.
