B. Interdisciplinary courses

i. Introductory interdisciplinary core course

LALS2001 Introduction to law and literary studies (6 credits)

This course introduces students to the different ways in which literary and legal texts can interact. Topics include literature as a humanizing supplement to the law, the history of 'discipline' as a concept, legal versus literary interpretation, linguistic dimensions of court judgments, confessions, and psychological processes implicit in legal reasoning. The course is deliberately designed as a team-taught course so that students enrolled in the double degree will be exposed to the approaches of different faculty members involved in the programme from an early stage in their academic careers.

Assessment: 20% continuous assessment; 30% mid-term research paper; 50% final research paper.

ii. Advanced interdisciplinary electives

The successful completion of any of the advanced interdisciplinary courses below by the end of the Fourth Year will fulfill the capstone experience for the BA (Literary Studies) programme.

LALS3001 Law and Literature (6 credits) (cross-listed as ENGL2118)

This course explores the complex inter-relations between literature and the law by examining the ways in which each discipline has responded to the other's presence. Both law and literature are products of language. Does that mean that they are cognate disciplines, or are they competing epistemologies? Why do legal themes recur in fiction, and what kinds of literary structures underpin legal argumentation? Now do novelists and playwrights imagine the law, and how do lawyers and judges interpret literary works? We will think through these questions by juxtaposing novels, plays, court cases, and critical theory. Prerequisite: a previous course in legal and/or literary subject.

Assessment: 40% continuous assessment, 60% research paper.

LALS3002 Law, meaning and interpretation (6 credits) (cross-listed as ENGL2126)

This course assumes no specialized knowledge of law or linguistics. It offers a multidisciplinary introduction to key debates within legal theory about language and discourse, and to the interface between the study of language and the discipline of law. The presentation of theories of language and law is complemented by exercises which reflect real life legal dilemmas. This course has been designed to progress from the study of meaning (especially lexical meaning) to the study of narration, interpretation and discourse. No technical knowledge of law is required rather interest and willingness to learn. The emphasis is on understanding and applying theory to real legal questions and problems: law is seen in the context of issues such as authority and power, doubt and certainty; narrative coherence, indeterminacy and disorder.

Assessment: 40% continuous assessment; 60% research paper.

LALS3003 Legal Discourse and the Mind (6 credits) (cross-listed as ENGL2127)

This course is a critical enquiry into how the law, as a cultural construct, attempts to reflect the society's values by regulating behaviour, and the challenges embedded in such a representation. The course shows how the processes of human perception, language use, memory reconstruction and decision-making interact with the legal system, and how such interactions sometimes pose challenges to justice.

Assessment: 30% continuous assessment; 70% research paper.

LALS3004 Law and Film (6 credits) (cross-listed as LLAW3141)

This elective course introduces students to the cultural study of the law by considering the multiple responses of cinematic texts to legal events. How are lawyers and legal institutions represented on the screen, and what does that tell us about the law? Is there a jurisprudential subtext to film? How do films attempt to capture traumatic events and human rights violations? Readings in jurisprudential theory and film theory will inform our discussion.

Assessment: 40% continuous assessment, 60% research paper.

LALS3005 Legal Fictions: United States citizenship and the right to write in America (6 credits) (cross-listed as AMER2046)

In 1776, the idea of self-evidence grounded the philosophical assertion that “all men are created equal.” And yet, political, economic and social equality in the democratic republic of the United States has often proven less of a guarantee and more of a promise. Beginning with Thomas Jefferson’s writing of the “Declaration of Independence,” the recognition of a person as fully human in the United States has depended on assumptions regarding race, class and gender. The course examines the changing definition of United States citizenship by putting legal texts (the U.S. Constitution, federal and state laws, Executive Orders, Supreme Court decisions) in dialogue with literary writings and film. In this course we will read stories by people whom federal and or state law barred from full citizenship. Through autobiographies, fiction, poetry and speeches, we will examine the cultural legacy of legal terms such as “domestic dependent nation,” “illegal alien” and “unlawful enemy combatant.” The course themes may include: property and democracy, slavery, westward expansion and Indian Removal, immigration (with particular focus on China and Asia), the right of women to vote, and the wartime powers of the Executive Office. Our goal will be to pay careful attention to the language and genres of the American legislative and judicial system, and conversely to contextualize literature in relation to the legal history through which the U.S. Constitution has been reinterpreted and amended to broaden its terms of equality. We will read writers who used words to protest against and revise the historical circumstances in which they had to fight for legal standing. We will also consider how different kinds of writing -- legal, scientific, autobiographical and fictional -- employ different rhetorical strategies to reach audiences, affect readers and influence the world.

Prerequisite: Nil

Assessment: 100% coursework

iii. Advanced interdisciplinary core course

LALS5001 Capstone: Research project in law and literary studies (6 credits)

The final-year research project enables students to pursue their individual interests in any aspect of the intersection between literary and legal discourses under the supervision of a faculty member. The project will culminate in an extended essay of approximately 5,000 words. Students are expected to meet with their supervisors regularly and to present their work-in-progress to their supervisors in the course of the semester.

Assessment: 100% research paper.
